

Simulation as a Teaching Tool

www.aixtra.rwth-aachen.de

This four-day intensive course in partnership with Boston MA, Center for Medical Simulation, and taught by their Harvard Medical School appointed faculty, will be offered for the second time in Germany at the internationally-known AIXTRA Center for Simulation and Patient Safety in Aachen.

Using a combination of immersive simulation, Interactive group lectures, large and small group discussion, and focused small group tutorial support, the course allows participants to network with and learn from colleagues, while practicing their skills with some of the most well-known simulation faculty in the world.
